PROHIBITION REFERENDUM STRONG FOR MODIFICATION

Illinois And Ohio Show Preference For Beer And Wine

ONLY TEST VOTE

Successor To Liquor Law Author Is Also Dry

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 8.—The referendum in Illinois is showing heavy majorities in favor of legalisation of the manufacture and sale of beer and light wines. The vote is running three to one for modification of the Prohibition Act. A similar amendment is also leading in Ohio.

Mr. Andrew J. Volstead of Minnesota, the father of the Prohibition Act, is apparently defeated. His Congressional opponent, however, stood on an even "drier" platform than Mr. Volstead.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The candidates at present elected to the House of Representatives number 192 Republicans, 191 Democrats, 1 Socialist and 1 Independent.

Pan Pacific Meet Closes; Hwai River Project Approved

BY GEORGE A. FITCH
(China Press Service)

Honolulu, Nov. 8.—The Pan-Pacific Commercial Conference has closed after what has unquestionably been one of the most successful conferences of the nations bordering the great Pacific Ocean. About 125 delegates from every Pacific country have been in attendance at each session, and each session has developed some highly important problem or phase of life on the Pacific.

At the closing session a resolution was passed endorsing the vital importance of the Hwai River Conservancy project and its relation to conserving and developing the enormous potential food supplies of China, especially on the cultivation of rice.

The resolution says the Conference would like to invite the attention of all governments interested in Pacific problems to the importance of encouraging and supporting the Hwai project, and directed that copies of the resolution be addressed to all the governments having interests in the Pacific Ocean, the American Red Cross, the banking consortium, and other interested organisations.

Relief Work Still Needed In Russia

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Nov. 8.—Dr. Nansen's Russian Relief Committee announce that a representative of the Friends' Relief Mission who has made a tour of the province of Buzuluk reports that relief work must continue for at least six months. The crops have been ruined and drought and famine are bound to prevail through the winter. The Soviet authorities are urging the peasants to gather a reserve of edible grasses and are already digging enormous pits for graves in anticipation of a heavy deathroll.

Hongkong, Nov. 9.—Professor Einstein has arrived. A reception was arranged by the Jewish Community but it will not be held as the Professor states that he needs rest. Professor Einstein leaves for Japan on board the Kitano Maru where he expects to stay a month after which he will probably visit China.

The Dog Watch

By Westa

ONCE UPON A time, in Washington, D.C., I was walking along "E" street, Northwest, near the junction of that thoroughfare with Pennsylvania avenue, when all of a sudden a beautiful young woman whom I never had seen before came busting around a corner and threw both her arms smack around my neck—just like that. And then, before you could have said Jack Robinson she began to claw my necktie loose with one hand and to scratch my face with the other.

Being broad daylight you can see that this was a terrible predicament, especially as a crowd began to collect. In a crowd like that there were sure to be a lot of cynics who doubtless would conclude that the young woman was my wife, and that I probably was getting a fraction of what was coming to me. This was a terrible thought, seeing that all my life I had regarded women as the most glorious creatures imaginable (in which opinion I am more confirmed than ever) and so, partly to show those sneering strangers that they were mistaken but mostly to save further wear and tear on that beautiful young woman's beautifully manicured and delicately pink fingernails I seized her by the wrists as gently as I could and held her at arms length.

"Missy," I asked, "what's the big idea?"

After her struggles abated and her quivering muscles had quieted she looked at me in a dazed way for a moment and then she said, very much confused, and apparently very contrite:

"Oh, I'm dreadfully sorry! I—I—you must forgive me. I was so overwrought! I...I...I have just seen Pavlowa!"

* * *

AND SO, JUST between you and me and the gatepost, Madame Pavlowa, that's why I haven't been out to see you since you've been in Shanghai. The other night I went out to the Olympic—the Princess and I—but when we stepped in the lobby a lot of otherwise sane repeaters who had already seen you were raving about you to a lot of customers who were waiting, pop eyed, for the curtain bell to ring, so we concluded we'd better get out of there while the getting was good. Later, after all the addicts were firmly wedged in their seats, we went back a little while and stayed just long enough to watch you in that "Snowflakes" thing, after which we beat it.

After that Washington experience you don't catch us on Bubbling Well Road when the maniacs are emerging from a Pavlowa performance. Enough, as the saying goes, is plenty.

* * *

HOW CAN YOU account for this Pavlowa person? For years, now, this Moscow missy, in the crude but expressive terminology of the Rialto, has been "knockin' 'em dead," and from all accounts the longer she knocks 'em the deader they fall.

Pavlowa can no more be explained than Russia can be explained. When you see her you do not think of Russia because you are too enraptured by the marvelous grace and beauty of her art to think of anything—even of that most interesting of all persons, yourself, which is the real measure of her art. But Pavlowa thinks of Russia all the time, because in the last analysis she is the essence of Russia and always she is trying to make you see Russia—her Russia.

Pavlowa, like all Russians, is something of a mystic, seeking and finding beauty in the world of make believe and in the wide realm of imagination. In her art, as in the art of the great Russian writers and musicians, Tschaikovsky among them, there is an elusive something that can't be defined—a charm that is as different as Russia is different. She takes you into fairyland, which is where millions of Russians, weary of their vast, unlovely steppes, of their endless solitudes and trackless snows, seek, and find, a spiritual compensation.

It is in fairyland, as a matter of fact, that all of us find our compensation for the blows that outrageous fortune inflicts upon us as we struggle through life, and the reason Pavlowa wins us so completely is because she, of all the guides into that enchanted realm that have visited this mud flat lately, has shown us that she knows best how to take us there.

Hence the rush to the Olympic!

G.O.P. RETAINS LOWER HOUSE, BUT MARGIN IS MICROSCOPIC

Nine Districts Unreported, But Change Is Not Likely

VOLSTEAD LOSES

Defeat Administered To Harding Regime Is Complete

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Nov. 9.—The latest returns show that 200 Republicans have been elected and 196 Democrats.

Boston, Nov. 9.—Mr. Gaston, the Democratic opponent of Senator Lodge, has demanded a recount in view of the unofficial estimate that Senator Lodge only had a majority of 1,945 votes of 1,000,000 cast.

New York, Nov. 9.—The Republicans have won the necessary 218 seats to ensure their retention of the majority in the House of Representatives. The Democrats won 205 seats; Socialist, one seat; Farmer Labor, one seat; and Independent, one seat. The returns of only nine districts are now awaited.

New York, Nov. 9.—The Republican control of the Senate is not threatened although the Party suffered a net loss of six seats. The Republicans carried 11 and the Democrats 19 of the 35 contests. The Democrats are leading in the five outstanding contests. The Republican majority at present in the Senate is 24. Senator McCumber, the author of the new tariff law, is among those defeated.

More complete returns yet to be received may show even further changes in the complexion of both houses and the general trend of the returns has been a repudiation of the Republican administration and a terrific protest against the new tariff.

Numerous political upsets of far-reaching importance were recorded including the defeat of several prominent senators, both Republican and Democratic.

Robert M. La Follette, Senator from Wisconsin was re-elected by a big majority.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska was defeated by Mr. Robert B. Howell, who is strongly opposed to the Ship Subsidy and is an advocate of municipal and government ownership. He was formerly the manager of the Omaha Municipal Gas and Water Works. The governorship is still in doubt.

Senator Atlee Pomerene, senator from Ohio since 1911, was defeated by Congressman Simeon D. Fess, leading Republican congressman from Ohio since 1913. Ohio has, paradoxically, repudiated President Harding's candidate for governor of his home state by electing the Democratic candidate.

Senator James M. Reed, Democrat, has apparently been re-elected from Missouri on his platform of opposition to the League of Nations and entangling alliances with foreign powers.

Senator Charles E. Townsend of Michigan, Republican, also has been re-elected by a comfortable majority, and Senator Kenneth D. McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee has been returned by a big majority.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the Republican leader, won re-election in Massachusetts.

Congressman Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, who ran for Senator and was personally supported by President Harding, was defeated by Senator John B. Kenrick, the Democratic incumbent. Congressman Mondell has been the Republican floor leader and by his defeat retires from Congress.

New York gave the Democrats a new vote in the Senate by the election of Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Commissioner of Public Health, over the Republican incumbent, Senator William M. Calder. Governor Nathan L. Miller, Republican, was also defeated for re-election by former Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic candidate.

The Republicans also lost an important vote in Indiana by the defeat of former Senator Albert

Lord Mayor Of London Honored At Dinner Here By Corporation Member

Mr. Oscar Berry Entertains Prominent Members Of Local Communities At Banquet In Shanghai Club

When the mountain cannot come to Mahomet and Mahomet finds it equally impossible to journey to the mountain, a compromise seems equitable, and such a solution of such a dilemma provided a unique event for Shanghai last evening, when London's "Lord Mayor's Day" was celebrated here for the first time—probably for the first time it ever was celebrated outside of Britain's capital city.

The local celebration was in the form of a dinner given at the Shanghai Club to some forty-odd prominent members of the various communities of this International city by Mr. Oscar Berry, F. C. A., member of the Corporation of the City of London, whose presence in Shanghai at the present time on business prevented him from attending the first Lord Mayor's banquet which he has missed in some years. Therefore he tendered the dinner here in honor of "The Right Honorable Alderman, Edward Cecil Moore, C. F. A.," who was ushered in at the London Guild Hall yesterday as Lord Mayor.

After an excellent repast had been provided there was an equally excellent program of toasts and responses. That to "The King" was first drunk by the company, after which the host proposed the "Church and State."

The Very Rev. C. J. F. Symons, Dean of the Cathedral, responded on behalf of the Church, and in a brief but impelling discourse, described the alignment of the two, telling of the influence which theologians have exerted in national policy, touching on the subject of disestablishment and remarking upon the advisability of bringing certain portions of the long established prayer books more into consonance with modern times.

BRITISH CONSUL SPEAKS

Mr. Sidney Barton, C.M.G., British Consul-General rose to reply on behalf of the "State," and in a witty speech contrasted the dinner in Shanghai with that occurring in London. His own address, he commented, could hardly come into comparison with that being delivered in the Guild Hall by the Premier, in outline of the Government's policy for the ensuing year, for in International Shanghai it would be hard to define a policy.

He stressed the idea of co-operation among the various nationalities represented in Shanghai, pointing out that the narrowness of the barriers between the races here as compared with those lying between the [illegible] themselves, and [illegible] an even closer fellowship, particularly between Britons, French and Americans, than is possible at home. He remarked upon the novelty of the event which they were celebrating in Shanghai and wound up with the whimsical hope that, just as the Lord Mayor of London is automatically brevetted Vice-Admiral of the Thames, there might some day be nominated a Vice-Admiral of the Soochow Creek.

Judge Peter Grain, of the British Supreme Court, assumed responsibility in the matter of the toast to the "Bench and Bar" and he also dwelt in humorous vein upon the subject assigned him. He began by quoting some of the more famous passages directed against the law, edging gradually over to others which, as he commented, were "not so bad" with regard to it. Several anecdotes from his own experience brought laughter and applause from the company and the latter part of his speech he devoted to an interesting description of the Lord Mayor's Day celebration in the London Guild Hall, two of which functions he had attended.

In introducing Judge Grain, Mr. Berry stated that it had been his pleasure to know intimately the Supreme Court Justice's father.

The toast to the Lord Mayor and to the Corporation of the City of London was proposed by Mr. Barton, the host of the evening responding.

MR. BERRY RESPONDS

Mr. Berry's reply proved one of much interest. He went into the traditions surrounding the age-old office and described some of the duties falling upon the incumbent. An average of four addresses a day and three meals taken in public are among these latter. The Lord Mayor has an allowance of ten thousand for the year, together with house allowance and other emoluments, but, the speaker added, fully half of this is expended on the first day of his assuming office. Thereafter he has an endless list of entertainments to carry through, at his own expense. Mr. Berry told of the old Guild system and of the charters which the many Guilds hold, some of them dating back many centuries.

He told also of a number of the customs which have clung through the ages to the office of Lord Mayor, including the one which prescribes that the King may not enter the City without first obtaining the permission of the Mayor. This dates back to the time of William the Conqueror, who, on his arriving before the city walls

Brother Of Navy Secretary Now In Japan

Mr. Charles Denby, United States Consul-General in Shanghai from 1907 to 1909, and brother of the United States Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Edwin Denby, arrived in Japan on the President Cleveland for a short visit before coming on to Shanghai. Mrs. Denby accompanies him.

Mr. Denby's son, James Denby, is a member of the American Embassy staff in Tokio, and after a visit with him Mr. and Mrs. Denby will come on to China for a visit with friends. Mr. Denby first came to the Far East in 1885 when his father became American Minister at Peking. Twenty-two years later Mr. Denby returned to Shanghai as the American Consul-General.

Han Period Pottery To Be Lecture Topic At Meeting Today

The Literary Department of the American Woman's Club will meet this afternoon at the Royal Asiatic Society's Hall at 5 o'clock. Mrs. H. A. Wilbur will read a paper on the "Bronzes and Potteries of the Han Period," with special reference to the development of design. Mr. Charles Kliene will give one of his delightful translations of Chinese tales, the scene of which is laid in Hangchow.

Mrs. Wilbur's lecture will be illustrated by examples of both potteries and bronzes of the Han period, loaned by local collectors.

Vladivostok Losses To Be Appraised

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, November 4.—The latest news from Vladivostok received by a certain authoritative quarter reports the formation of a committee to investigate the damage sustained by the Vladivostok forts, military and naval establishments, and government and private properties during the period of the anti-revolutionary regime and the Japanese occupation. The Government employees and public officials, as well as private individuals, have been ordered to co-operate in the investigation with the committee.

An order was issued on October 31 appointing M. Belesky as the President of the Vladivostok Executive Council. The former President, M. Smilnoff, also remains as a member of the Council.

General Order No. 1 has been promulgated, prohibiting gambling, opium smoking and the taking of cocaine, which have hitherto been permitted by the former Vladivostok Government as a means of raising the revenue. Any person who violates this regulation will be referred to the military court for punishment.

Honored At Dinner Here

Mr & Mrs E.C. Moore.

MR. E. C. Moore, the new Lord Mayor of London, was signally honored in Shanghai last night, at a dinner at the Shanghai Club. The host was Mr. Oscar Berry, a member of the Corporation of the City of London, who extended invitations to a large number of prominent Shanghai citizens to join him in a dinner in honor of the newly appointed London official. A full account of the dinner will be found in another column.

PEKING'S REQUEST FOR BIG LOAN TO BE TURNED DOWN

American And Japanese Banks Will Not Lend Any More To Administration

(Special to The China Press)

Peking, November 9.—The Chinese Government, under the pretext of liquidating outstanding foreign loans, has repeatedly approached the new Consortium for a big loan. Although no definite attitude has been assumed by the banks in the Consortium, the Japanese group held a meeting in [illegible] on the Chinese proposal. The decisions of the meeting were communicated to the British group in London.

The gist of the communication was to the effect that since the Peking Government remains as a mere name without any ability to unify the country in the face of opposing cliques, it would appear more than probable that the present administration would not be able to carry out the purpose of the proposed loan, namely, liquidation of foreign loans, if a huge loan is granted to it. The Japanese bankers, therefore, considered the time not yet opportune for them to participate in any loan at all.

While the British and American financiers are agreed in as far as their desire to see the new Consortium active and in their view that the present circumstances offer an opportunity for the Consortium to function, they differ in the extent to which they should participate in the present investment. The American group has unofficially expressed its decision to adopt a watchful waiting policy, which, in actuality, is not much different from that adopted by the Japanese. A definite statement is expected from the American group shortly, it is reported.

The new consortium will hold its fall meeting in London in the near future. A decision as to the general policy towards the present government is expected at this meeting.

Hongkong Golfers Defeat Manila Men

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Nov. 9.—The Interport golf match between Hongkong and Manila was played at Fanling yesterday. Hongkong won five well-contested singles and halved one. The Colony's representatives also won all three of the foursomes.

The Hongkong Golf Club entertained the Manila team to dinner at the Hongkong Hotel in the evening. The guests included the Shanghai interport cricket team.

MARKS AT 47.000

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 8.—The final rate at which German marks were quoted in London today was 47,000 to £1, while French francs were 72.20 and Belgian 79.90 to the £. On the other hand, New York on London improved to $4.64½ to the £.

PLOT TO KEEP MANCHURIA IN TURMOIL SEEN

Reds Said To Be Instructed To Disturb Provinces According To Pact

(Special to The China Press)

Harbin, November 9.—Serious fighting is taking place between Red and White Armies along the Chinese Eastern Railway at Wuchang, which is bottled up. Harbin is terrorised. The clash is significant as it has an important bearing upon the Chinese domestic situation.

When M. Joffe began his negotiations with the Peking authorities, a secret undertanding was reached it is understood with a dominating military faction to have the Reds assist in the subjugation of Chang Tso-lin in Manchuria. The present strife in Manchuria is said to be a part of the scheme to keep the territory along the Chinese Eastern Railway in a constant state of turmoil thereby carrying out the stipulations of the secret pact.

Much anxiety is being expressed by the European and American residents in Manchuria in view of the spread of Bolshevism in this region.

Japanese Steel Strikers In Riot

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, November 3.—Over one hundred and twenty workers in the Oshima Steel Works at Oshima, near Mukojima, have been on strike owing to a dispute arising out of payment of "commission" on the result of their work. On November 1 an interview was held between the Directors of the Company and a delegation of the strikers, but no satisfactory conclusion was arrived at. Yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock all the strikers marched on the company's works singing "labor songs."

The policemen, who were guarding the premises, shut the gate and refused to admit the workers. Thereupon the men broke down the wooden fences around the factory and streamed into the compound. All the clerks, and about 100 men who were at work, fearing the worst, ran for their lives.

The infuriated workers broke into the offices and factory, and smashed the window panes, and all the furniture and machinery they could lay their hands on. On receipt of the news of the incident 500 policemen arrived at the scene on the run and arrested all the rioters. At the same time two hundred policemen raided the Oshima Labor Hall where eighty men discharged from the works were holding a meeting, whom they also arrested. The judicial officials are holding an examination of the men who resorted to violence, and most of the men will probably be prosecuted.

ALLIED NOTE WARNS TURKS; VIOLATION OF PACTS SHOWN

Commissioners Threaten To Cable Home Offices

GRAVITY GROWS

Kemalists' Repeat Demand For Evacuation

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, Nov. 8.—At seven this evening the Allied High Commissioners handed a note to the Angora representative stating that if the measures adopted by the Kemalist authorities in the city in flagrant violation of the Mudros and Mudania Conventions are not withdrawn they will consult their Governments with regard to the adoption of necessary urgent measures.

Paris, Nov. 8.—An Allied proclamation of martial law in Constantinople is to be expected shortly.

London, Nov. 8.—Contrary to the reassuring reports in London to the effect that Rafet Pasha yesterday expressed his readiness to cancel the projected military and economic measures in consequence of the Allied Generals' objections, tonight's telegrams from Reuter's correspondent in Constantinople state that a telegram from the Angora Government in reply to the Allies' last note reiterates the demand for the Allied evacuation of Constantinople and the removal of the Allied warships. The demand declares that the presence of troops and warships is incompatible with the Kemalist administration at Constantinople.

Washington, Nov. 9.—The Navy Department has ordered the battleship, Pittsburgh, to proceed immediately to Constantinople from Gibraltar to guard against eventualities.

The British, French, Italian and Belgian Ambassadors have submitted proposals to Mr. Hughes, the Secretary of State, recognising the equality of the American claims with the Allied claims on Germany for the maintenance of the troops in occupation. It is understood that the Allies pointed out the impracticability at present of revising the whole system of reparation allotments but outlined a plan for American reimbursement.

London, Nov. 9.—Disquietude had arisen in London owing to the complete absence of news from Constantinople since the message announcing the reiteration of the Turks' demands. Messages now coming in by indirect routes show that the silence was due to the Turks cutting the cable between Chanak and Bokalo. Martial Law has not yet been imposed. Two British soldiers have been murdered at Kassin Passa.

FRENCH ATTITUDE

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Nov. 8.—Commenting on the impression produced in France by the pessimistic news received from the Near East, some of which lacks confirmation, the Liberte recalls that the role of France is one of moderation and conservation.

"We shall be with those who show themselves reasonable. We shall not allow ourselves to be carried away by anyone further than we wish to go in the Near East."

FOR EARLIER CONFERENCE

(French Wireless)

Paris, Nov. 8.—In spite of the British demands that the Lausanne Conference be postponed until November 27, French opinion is united in the view that the conference should be held as soon as possible.

It is understood from various unofficial conversations that Italy too believes the conference should be held with the least possible delay.

Commenting on the attitude produced in France as a result of the pessimistic news from the Orient "La Liberte" recalls the fact that France's role has always been one of moderation and conservation of energy.

BOSTON LEADER OF CATHOLICS IS CLUB GUEST HERE

Monsignor McGlinchey Tells Of Progress In Homeland

Catholic activities in the United States were recounted yesterday afternoon by Monsignor McGlinchey, Director of the Propagation of the Faith in the Archdiocese of Boston, at a reception given in his honor at the Catholic Club of China.

The visiting prelate, who is on a world tour of inspection of Catholic missions, told of the work carried by the Knights of Columbus, St. Vincent de Paul and kindred societies and by his own organisation which raises funds in the United States and disburses them to foreign missions in every part of the world. He told intimately of the co-operation by lay societies with the 118 bishops and 18,000 priests in America and pleaded for similar co-operation between the Catholic layman and clergy in Shanghai.

Monsignor McGlinchey gave an interesting sketch of his tour of China and paid tribute to the unswerving devotion of the Catholic missionary in this country, giving particular praise to the foreign nuns: "those cultured, refined, highly educated women who are doing such wonderful work and have devoted their life's labor to the Chinese poor, without hope of earthly reward." The Little Sisters of the Poor and the Francescan Sisters of Mary and their work were described in the Monsignor's tribute to the nuns.

He spoke, too, of the Catholic missionary in other parts of the pagan world and remarked that of the 65,000 missionaries of the Catholic faith in un-Christian countries, 45,000 were women members of religious orders.

"In my tour of China I have found three titled women—one of them, a member of an English ducal family, laboring as nuns for poor Chinese," he said. I have seen an Austrian Countess, who renounced the world for her Saviour, giving her life for the people of this country. On the Island of Chusan I met a Sister who was known in England as Lady Berkeley before she became a religious."

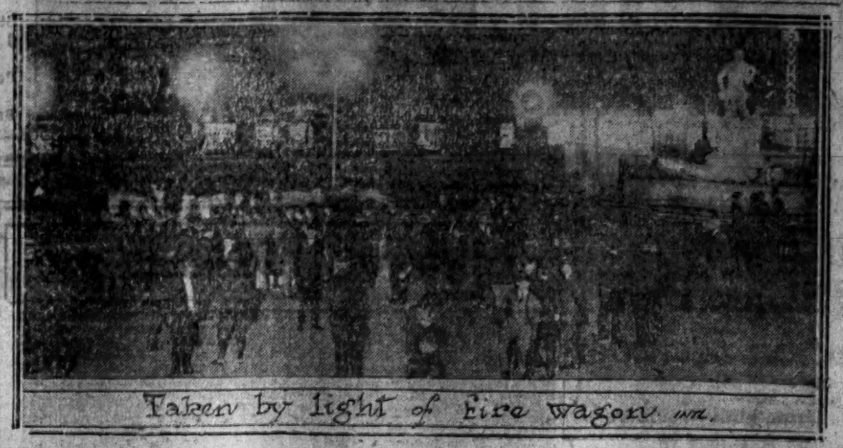
Speaking of his own Society, he told how the Boston Diocese office was administered and how interest in foreign missions was engendered among Catholic lay people. He said that in his diocese 100,000 persons give five cents monthly and in addition 100,000 children give one cent each month, thus helping to realise G.$122,000 annually to be distributed among missions in every corner of the globe.

Monsignor McGlinchey leaves here for Hongkong tomorrow on his way back to Boston by way of the Suez. He will visit Catholic missionaries in India for some time and will be back in Boston next March.

Following Monsignor McGlinchey short talks were given by Father Martin Kennelley, of Siccawei, formerly of St. Joseph's church; Father Jaquinot de Besange of the Church of the Sacred Heart on Nanzing Road; and Father Robert J. Cairns, procurator of the Maryknoll Mission at Hongkong. Other priests who attended the reception were Father Groeh Cumbo of St. Joseph's Church; Father R. Vearhaze, of the Missions Belges and Father Castrillo of the Spanish Augustinian Mission.

President Harold C. Norman of St. Joseph's Catholic Association presided at the reception, which followed a tea. While tea was being served a delightful soprano solo was sung by Mrs. Jones, Miss Hansen acting as accompanist.

Pictures Taken By Light Of Fire Wagon



Taken by light of fire wagon.

CITY HALL, New York, was the scene of a demonstration of a new piece of fire apparatus just installed—a flare and searchlight wagon for illuminating the scene of night fires. It makes its own electricity and is sufficiently powerful to light up an entire city block. This photograph was taken by the light of the machine, with only a fiftieth of a second exposure.

found them manned and received the ultimatum that certain things must be complied with before the city would give way to him, Mr. Berry, from the memory of many readings, gave the text of the treaty there entered into, granting heirship to the children of the citizens of London at that time and thus guaranteeing the city's ownership to its own citizens.

He told too of the treasures in the way of antique documents and objects which the Guild Hall possesses. These include one of Shakespeare's signatures, of which there are not more than five in existence, and the mace of gold and crystal which belonged to Edward the Confessor and which is now used only in coronation ceremonies.

In conclusion Mr. Berry spoke of the homesickness which he had felt in Shanghai, particularly with the nearing of the date of the Lord Mayor's banquet and thanked his guests for their part in dispelling that disquietude, expressing the hope that he might again have the pleasure of foregathering with them here in Shanghai.

"THE LADIES" TOASTED

The final toast of the evening was that to "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. H. G. Simms, Chairman of the Municipal Council and replied to by the Rev. W. Robbins, M.A. Both toast and response were dealt with in eloquent fashion and with a deal of wit. Mr. Simms began with quotations from Burns and then became poetic on his own account, winding up with a tribute to the fair sex which, if he is running for office when suffrage comes into effect here, would make wonderful campaign literature.

The Rev. Mr. Robbins, replying, oriented himself straightway into the ranks of the ladies and made observation on the privilege accorded the so-called weaker sex to stand up and defend itself in the ultra-male Shanghai Club. This speaker did not rely on the poets but he drew on a fund of stories which struck a highly responsive chord and stated the case for his clients in a style which not only convinced but convulsed his hearers.

The dinner concluded with a hearty indication of the appreciation felt by the guests toward their host.

(N. B.—Real turtle soup is one of the imperative items on the bill of fare for the Lord Mayor's banquet. It supplants even the roast beef of Old England on that occasion. And real turtle soup was on the boards last night. As Dean Symons feelingly remarked.)

China Association In London Told Of Homeland's Worries

(Reuter's Service)

London Nov. 8.—Sir John Jordan and Sir Denison Ross were among the many prominent men present at the annual dinner of the China Association last night.

Mr. Anderson, the Chairman, toasting the Association said that although the Peking Government included some men of great ability like Dr. Wellington Koo it had been unable to exert its authority throughout the country.

The chief difficulty was want of money. There was no doubt that the facts that the authority of the Central Government was challenged in certain areas and that default had been made in the case of certain unsecured loans would make it imperative that there should be no doubt about the security of any projected loan, also that proper guarantees should be forthcoming with regard to the purposes for which the proceeds were to be used.

If the spirit were willing on both sides and if the atmosphere of the Washington Conference prevailed we might reasonably hope that terms might eventually be arranged which would be acceptable to both the Chinese Government and the investors.

G.O.P. Retains Lower House

J. Beveridge, who defeated Senator Harry S. New in the primaries.

Senator Joseph F. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey was defeated for re-election by Governor Edward Edwards, the Democratic candidate, who is the leading anti-prohibition advocate to be elected to the Senate.

Brookhart, the Bull Mooser, who routed the Republican machine in the primaries, was elected Senator from Iowa. Considerable interest attaches to the defeat of Governor Frazier of North Dakota who ran for United States Senator on the Nonpartisan ticket.

All women candidates for Senator or Congresswoman have been snowed under by their male opponents with the exception of one. Mrs. Peter Olesen of Minnesota, candidate for Senator, was defeated by Congressman Shipstead, Miss Alice Robertson, the only sitting woman member of congress was defeated by her Democratic opponent, while the one woman to meet with success was Mrs. Winifred Huck, who was elected to fill her father's unexpired term. Her father, Congressman Mason of Illinois, died in office. Her term expires in March.

Congressman Meyer London of New York, the only Socialist in the present Congress, was defeated for re-election but the Socialists will retain one seat as Victor Berger, famous Socialist leader from Wisconsin and former Congressman, was elected from Wisconsin. Berger was elected during the war also but was refused admission because of alleged disloyalty.

Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania, who was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Bois Penrose, was elected to fill the vacancy, and Gifford Pinchot, the progressive Republican candidate for Governor was elected by a good majority.

Plan Launched To Stabilise Mark

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Nov. 8.—The proposals, embodied in the report of the unofficial experts (Messrs. J. M. Keynes, Brand and Jenks and Professor Cassel) called in by the Government to help to solve the financial problem, aim at stabilization of the mark on a dollar basis of from 3,000 to 3,500 marks with the help of the Reichsbank gold reserve and by freeing Germany for at least two years from all reparation payments in cash and kind.

The experts express the opinion that half of the Reichsbank gold reserve would suffice for the requisite repurchases of paper marks, which should be restricted to German banknotes, especially those in foreign possession, and should not include exchequer bills. They suggest that modest credits might be obtained from a consortium of bankers to support stabilisation, but admit that a large foreign loan cannot be expected until the reparation problem has finally been settled.

Shipping Official Rotarians' Guest

Mr. A. E. Disney, special Representative of the International Mercantile Marine company who arrived in Shanghai last Sunday was a guest at the Rotary tiffin yesterday.

Mr. Disney has come to the Far East to investigate the through passenger traffic situation between the Orient and Europe via the United States. Instead of the great bulk of passenger traffic going by way of the Suez Canal, Mr. Disney is confident that travel via the United States will appeal to many inasmuch as the journey may be accomplished in less time in addition to obviating the intense discomfort of heat in the Red Sea.

The lines operated by the International Mercantile Marine Company are The White Star, the Red Star, Atlantic Transport, Leyland, Panama Pacific and White Star-Dominion Lines.

Through tickets may be purchased from any point in China to Europe or the British Isles which include transportation across the Pacific and through the United States or Canada and necessary stop overs at hotels as well as transportation across the Atlantic on one of the fast liners operated by one of the subsidiary companies.

CURZON LAMENTS LLOYD GEORGE'S CURZON SLIGHTS

"Should Have Consulted Me," Says Foreign Chief

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 8.—Earl Curzon, speaking at the Cannon Street Hotel today said that Mr. Lloyd George's record would be inscribed in the lasting letters but some of his actions had not been helpful to the Foreign Office, notably his manifesto of September 16, appealing to the Dominions, which was issued without the knowledge of Earl Curzon or the Cabinet.

The expert work of the Foreign Office should be performed by its trained staff subject to Cabinet control without interference of "amateurs" however brilliant they might be.

Earl Curzon said that our foreign policy was now the Empire's and not merely Britain's. Co-operation with the Allies was necessary on the question of reparations and the Near East. The Anglo-French entente was more valuable to us than any written pact.

Earl Curzon still hoped for a settlement of the reparations question by agreement. Settlement by force, he said, was impracticable.

Earl Curzon declared that the pretensions of the Kemalists were intolerable, they were an affront to the Allies and a challenge to Europe.

He trusted that the unity of the Allied authorities at Constantinople, whose request to establish a state of siege had been endorsed by the British and French Governments last night, would be maintained.

Britain was prepared to contribute to the maintenance of that unity but if the unity was broken owing to no action of our own we would be unable to support the burden alone. Therefore, he appealed to the country to sustain the policy of common action and strengthen the hands of the Governments in defending the honor of the flag and peace of Europe.

The Turks must learn that there was a limit to concessions and that the strength of Britain and the might of Europe were a rock on which they would hurl themselves in vain.

I thought no more of criticism. The breath of man has never influenced me much, for I depend more upon myself than others.

WIRELESS PLANT HERE TO BE EQUAL OF WORLD'S BEST

Federal Company Officials Tells Rotarians Of Plans

Astounding figures indicating the size and power of the great wireless plant to be erected here were given yesterday in a talk at the Rotary Club by Mr. R. P. Schwerin, president of the Federal Telegraph Company of California and the Federal Telegraph Company of Delaware, who recently arrived here to see the work begun.

Work on the station, which will be the largest and most completely equipped in the world, is to be started this month it is expected and, given normal conditions, the huge plant will be in operation in another seventeen or eighteen months.

President J. Harold Dollar of the Commerce Chamber recalled Mr. Schwerin's early days in the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, when introducing the speaker, lauding the guest of honor for the work he did in bringing American ships to the Orient. "The efficiency and success of operation of the Pacific Mail ships were due to Mr. Schwerin," Mr. Dollar said.

DESCRIBES PLANT

After describing "the revelations" he experienced after an absence from Shanghai of more than thirty years, Mr. Schwerin launched into a description of the new wireless plant and described the formation of the group which is promoting it. He detailed how the American Radio Corporation purchased the British Marconi interests and united them with the American Marconi to establish the new firm and then said that the Radio Corporation had united with the Federal Company of California in the new Delaware Company which is to build the stations at Shanghai, Harbin, Peking and Canton.

The Radio Corporation is comprised of the General Electric, Western Electric, International Wireless, American Telephone and Telegraph Company and one other company, and the inventions and improvements of all these companies were placed at the Federal's disposal, he said.

Mr. Schwerin said that the Federal Telegraph Company of California had anticipated high power radio corporations before the General Electric Company and had built the stations at Cavite, Pearl Harbor, Guam, Marseilles and Bordeaux, the last named at the time of its erection being the largest in the world.

The Radio Corporation of America subsequently built the world's greatest station at Long Island, and now the largest in the universe will be at Shanghai.

In describing the Long Island Station Mr. Schwerin said that the sending wires were in two loops 6,000 feet long, with 13 miles of wire. There are four wires strung for antennae, each eight miles in length.

MASTS 1,000 FEET HIGH

The station in Shanghai will occupy about one square mile of land and there will be six supported masts, each 1,000 feet in height. The power house will be equipped with 1,500 boiler house power capable of generating 2,500 kilowatts, making possible a radio frequency of 20,000 cycles per second from a voltage of 120,000. There will be two 1,000 kilowatt Federal transmitters. Wave Sound lengths will travel from the new plant at the rate of 160,000 feet per second.

Work on the new station will start immediately, Mr. Schwerin added.

The plant will be built and operated by the Federal Telegraph Company of Delaware and will be under the direction of that company until the Chinese Government pays for the stations and takes them over. "It will be but a short time until China is connected with all other countries of the world by wireless," he said.

In addition to Mr. Dollar, Secretary D. J. Lewis and the members of the Executive Committee of the American Chamber of Commerce attended the tiffin. Other guests included Mr. Yang Tcheng, former Chinese Minister to Berlin, and later Commissioner of Foreign Affairs here, Mr. G. E. Emmons, vice president of the General Electric Company also was present, while the following members of the Schwerin party, engineers who are to build the stations in China, were guests of the American business men and the Rotarians: Mr. R. R. Beale, Mr. J. H. Wallace, Mr. H. F. Elliott and Mr. D. G. Marsh.

Europe Without Peace As Surveyed By Nitti

It may be questioned at the outset whether "The Wreck of Europe" is an admirable title for a translation of the book which Francesco Nitti, ex-Premier of Italy, called "Europe Without Peace." It is not the same thing. Europe may be wrecked in the end. It is half wrecked now. In vast regions the wreckage effectually conceals the efforts of the rebuilders. But what Nitti wrote was "without peace;" that at least is true.

Nitti's view of present day problems is well understood and, of course, important, since it is not impossible that he may be recalled to power upon the platform here laid down. As is not unusual in statesmen out of office, he is stronger in criticism than in constructive suggestion. He has no trouble in proving that Europe is headed for the bow-wows. What he would do about it, as the case stands, is not so clear in detail. In principle he is profoundly right. "To arrive at peace we must first of all desire peace." And again:

The American journalists asked me to give them my ideas on peace.

"What is the most necessary thing for the maintenance of peace?" they inquired.

"One thing only," I replied, "is necessary, Europe must smile once more."

Yes, indeed; But how coax back the unwilling smile? Forgiveness or scaling down of international war debts might do it. Nitti strongly urges this policy, including of course the United States. Unfortunately, with Normalcy enthroned in Washington, nothing of that sort is in immediate prospect.

We are accustomed to newspaper and other discussion of the British and French policies for the reconstruction of Europe, and of the lack of a policy in the United States. Little is said of Italy, and it is always as an Italian that Signor Nitti writes. He is manifestly grateful to Germany for the progress Italy made before the war as a member of the Triple Alliance. Italy never looked upon Germany as the enemy. It was Austria-Hungary with which her ambitions clashed. The hated "Tedeschi" were of Vienna, not Berlin. Austria-Hungary is smashed to literal flinders now. Italy, in so far as Nitti can speak for her, would gladly save Germany from destruction. In his enthusiasm he speaks of the Germans as "the most cultured, progressive and technically advanced populations of the world," which requires qualifications. Politically, at least, the Germans of the empire were far from being "advanced." Their undoubted culture had flaws.

All that Signor Nitti says of the financial clauses of the peace can be matched in the writings of other critcs. It is difficult to overrate the folly of the treaties in this respect. But it is easy, and unfortunately usual, to dispraise unjustly the new boundaries.

It is not wholly true that, as Nitti says, the tendency in Europe before the war was toward consolidation into large nations. Even then there were several new powers, born in recent years. It is not true at all that "predominantly and purely German territories" have been handed over to Poland, except in the case of surrounded pockets not physically united to German territory. It is not true that Danzig has been given to Poland. It is true that "the constant aim of the Allies, even in opposition to Italy, has been to give free and safe outlets on the seacoast to the Serb-Croat-Jugo-Slav state." And why not?

This sentence spills some of the milk of the cocoanut. Nitti mostly complains that the Italian envoys at Versailles were unduly engrossed in the Fiume matter and took minor part in more general decisions. The Fiume issue, not contained in the Treaty of London, was invented in Paris for political use at home in Italy and proved a boomerang. Nitti is, of course, anti-French, in part because France encouraged the ambitions of Poland and Jugo Slavia. But he is much more anti-Slav. Nor is his position even here wholly unjustified by the facts. When he reminds the world that if Russia had remained Czarist and true to the Entente she would have become, under the war agreements, a dangerous colossus spanning the Continent from Petrograd to Constantinople, he does not overstate fact.

But so jealous is the ex-Premier of Slav expansion that he is hardly fair to the smaller and less dangerous Slav nations created or enlarged by the treaties. In this respect, at least, an important one to 108,000,000 people, the condition of Europe is bettered by the Treaties of Versailles, Saint-Germain-en-Laye, Trianon and Sevres; with Germany, Austria, Hungary and Turkey. Never again one must hope—not too confidently, seeing what had happened in Turkey—will vast tracts of Europe be tyrannously administered by imperial system in the interest of alien races. The Serbs of the old Dual Monarchy, the Poles, the Roumanians of Transylvania, may make a bad use of their freedom, but at least they are free of their ancient enemies and oppressors.

Nitti regards Mr. Lloyd George as the most remarkable man at the Versailles Conference, Clemenceau as the one who actually wrote the treaties. His opinion of President Wilson as a statesman, not a moralist, is low. Some of his prognostications already falsified are due to the fact that the book was written before the result of the plebiscites in Europe or of the Naval Conference in Washington. Nevertheless, it is a work which must be reckoned with by students of international problems.

So important a book should deserve a better treatment than its publishers have given it. There is an index; but the prefaces are not paged. The translation by an anonymous writer has been revised by Prof. Gauss of Princeton, but he has not caught and corrected all its faults. Some of these are probably due to a too literal following of the text. To speak of workmen being "thrust into an absolute impossibility of producing" or of depriving Germany of her fleet as "depriving the freight market" of skilled seamen, is clumsy work. The text is not always so intelligible.

Suggests Changes In Reparations Policy

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Nov. 8.—M. Loucheur made an important speech in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday on the financial situation.

The Journal des Debats declares that the former Minister of the Liberated Regions expressed the opinions of a number of Members of Parliament in his assertion that since the reparations payments in their present state are not giving results it is necessary to have recourse to a policy of pledges after a previous agreement with the Allies.

Titled Women Seek Berlin Jobs

Berlin, Oct. 7.—The fight for a living has driven an increasing number of German women of rank into the world of bread winners. In the face of the season's first chilly blasts many women, who formerly were hostesses at Berlin's brilliant social functions, are seeking shelter behind the doors of employment organizations able to furnish them with odd jobs.

A varied assortment appears every morning in the headquarters established by the Housewives' Association of Greater Berlin. This association aims to provide the needy of the middle classes with employment. The ordinary burgher's wife, who though uneducated is an expert needlewoman, may be seen alongside a professor's wife or a Countess.

The association examines the applicants regarding their ability to fit certain kinds of work. It gives instruction free, if required had supplies home work, such as sewing and embroidering. The products are sold at the association's salesrooms, the buyer never learning the identity of the actual producer.

Private labor exchanges are unable to conceal the former social status of their would-be employes. A Major's wife recently applied to the exchange for a housemaid. The willing candidate appeared, but was rejected because she was found to be the wife of a Colonel. The Major saw the applicant and thought that it might cause her embarrassment and explained to the exchange officials that it was impossible for him to engage her.

A Countess, who occupied a distinguished social position before the war, was assigned to a servant's position recently, merely to keep body and soul together.

Investigators say that the German ruin for the iddle classesvgkqin man exchange rate has caused ruin for the middle classes. The stratum of society, some social workers declare, must either join the proletariat or die out. Many who through inheritance of lifetime savings had acquired what was regarded as a comfortable fortune now find themselves virtually penniless because the currency is worth only 1-300th of its former value.

A large property exchange is conducted by the Housewives Association. Scores of the middle classes sacrifice every day some treasured household article in order to meet the rent, gas or other domestic bills.

(Reuter's Pacific Service).

Peking, Nov. 9.—The Senate yesterday informally discussed without decision the advisability of postponing the election of the Speaker.

Peking, Nov. 9.—It is reported from Chientao that the Tuchun of Kirin has issued an order forbidding further entry of Russian refugees into that province.

Peking, Nov. 9.—General Feng Yu-hsiang has not yet arrived. He is now expected to arrive this evening. The Chamber of Commerce is preparing a reception.

Peking, Nov. 9.—On behalf of the Fukien gentry Mr. Lin Chao-min called on the Minister of War yesterday pointing out that since the departure of Little Han there is no further need for reinforcements in Fukien and requesting that such should not be allowed to enter the province.

Peking, Nov. 9.—Foreign telegrams from Amoy state that an attack, which was probably in the nature of a military demonstration, was made against Generals Li Hou-chi and Kao Chuan-chung at one o'clock yesterday morning by General Tsang Chih-ping's forces. Generals Li Hou-chi and Kao Chuan-chung fled to the Foreign Concession. All the shops in Amoy were closed yesterday but the city is quiet.

Chinese telegrams say that Generals Li Hou-chi and Kao Chuan-chung have fled from Amoy. The Chinese telegrams also state that Admiral Sah Chen-ping has recently been in communication with General Tsang Chih-ping and believe that an understanding exists between them. The Fukienese have recently been urging the Government to send Admiral Liu Kuang-hsiung to Fukien but the Admiral declined unless he be given the post of Inspector-General. The Government then said that the posts of Inspector-Generals and Tuchuns being abolished no new post could be created. Admiral Liu Kuang-hsiang's sympathisers say he could not go to Fukien while General Li Hou-chi is there as he could not oppose the man he appointed Tuchun while he could not support General Li Hou-chi without losing his own popularity in Fukien, but now that General Li Hou-chi has apparently been eliminated they believe he will accept the Government's offer and will proceed forthwith to Foochow.

Wedding

BOYD—WILKS

A brilliant social event occurring yesterday was the wedding of Mr. C. C. Boyd, of Jardine, Matheson and Company, Hongkong, well-known as a local sportman, and Miss Phyllis Wilks, of Cape Town, South Africa.

The ceremony took place at the Cathedral, the full choral service being used. Dean C. J. P. Symons officiated and Mr. R. C. Young presided at the organ and the church was crowded by friends of the bride and groom. The bride was given away by Mr. G. A. Turner and Mr. David Brand acted as best man. The flower girls were Miss Mary Wilkinson and Miss Eugenie Reynell while Master Geoffrey Steel filled the office of trail bearer.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Country Club, where there was a large attendance to drink the health of the newly married couple. The Club was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the British Flower shop having undertaken the task of transforming it into a floral bower.

Mr. Boyd is a popular figure in local as well as Hongkong sporting fields. He is an interport polo player, having played for both Shanghai and Hongkong, was a member of the Light Horse while in this city and many a time and oft proved a stellar figure in steeplechasing events run off here.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd will make their home in Hongkong.

Japanese Fleet Leader Is Dined

(Reuter's Service)

Capetown, Nov. 8.—The Mayor today gave a luncheon in honor of vice-Admiral Taniguchi, commanding the visiting Japanese squadron. The Admiral's references to Anglo-Japanese amity were warmly welcomed.

A former Minister, Mr. Kakichi Uchida, who is unofficially accompanying the squadron, interviewed by Reuter, said that he came to study the South African Constitution, to ascertain the prospects of Japan availing herself of South African experts, particularly cattle. Mr. Uchida expressed the opinion that there were big possibilities of increasing Japanese-South African trade.

It is much easier to be critical than to be correct.

The appointment of magistrates is left to the Civil Governor, according to the provisions of the Constitution. Wang's action was regarded as unconstitutional by the assemblymen.

Philippines Plan New Banking Law

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Nov. 9.—A Bill has been introduced into the Senate, prohibiting foreign banking corporations from accepting money or securities, either as time or checking deposits.

The enactment of this bill into law would force foreign banks to incorporate under Philippine laws, become merely exchange banks, or retire from the Philippines.

Foreign banks are not subject to the internal revenue laws which, the Bill's sponsors claim, gives them an advantage over local banks.

Peking Public In Protest Meetings

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Nov. 6.—The local papers continue to give accounts of public meetings held in protest to the Peking Tram Company and its action in keeping the shares of the stock to itself and not putting them upon the market. It is claimed that the public welfare is closely bound up in the matter and it should not be so monopolised by a few.

EDMUNDS AMERICAN SCHOOL ELEVEN DEFEATS MILLER'S TEAM EASILY; SCORE 20 TO 6

Fighting with redoubled energy after Brewster had scored a touchdown against them, the Edmunds men, urged on by Roy Squires, swept down the field in great style in the second period of yesterday's championship game at the American School, and carried the pigskin over the chalk for the first of three touchdowns, leaving no doubt as to their superiority over Coach Miller's eleven, whom they out-played in every department of the game. The final score was 20 to 6.

The game opened with a rush. The Miller men, smarting under their defeat of a week ago, fought desperately, determined to even the series, and in the first quarter they had everything their way, in spite of a number of fumbles, which caused the ball to change hands frequently. Squires returned Brewster's kick-off to midfield, and after a few minutes scrimmaging, Miller's men got the ball, carrying it to Edmunds' 9-yard line, where it was lost on a fumble. The Edmunds team then pushed their rivals back to the center of the gridiron, where Miller again got the ball. A punting duel followed, where Brewster was at a disadvantage owing to the high wind.

THE FIRST SCORE

On resuming play in the second period, a forward pass to Charles Squires gave the Miller squad the ball on their opponents' 40-yard line. Here Brewster dodged through half a dozen Edmunds tacklers, carrying the ball to within the shadow of the goal-posts, where he scored on a beautiful line plunge a few moments later. On the try for the extra point, Rawlinson's pass was low, and Brewster failed to get over the drop-kick. Miller 6, Edmunds 0.

Roy Squires returned Brewster's kick-off to his own 40-yard mark. This began a rapid march down the field, replete with line bucks by the big Edmunds fullback, ending with a touchdown resulting from Squires' buck from the 3-yard position. McGinnis added a point by a careful drop-kick. Edmunds's squad was leading 7 to 6.

Five minutes later, after a series of futile plays in midfield, McGinnis broke through the Miller line for a remarkable 50-yard dash, being pulled down by Brewster just before he reached the line. Parker tried to score on an end run, but was thrown for an 8-yard loss. Roy Squires was again called upon, and smashed his way through right end for eleven yards and a touchdown. He added a point by a determined drive through left tackle.

THE SECOND HALF

In the second half, McGinnis kicked off to Coach Miller's 10-yard line, and Brewster returned it to midfield by the prettiest run of the whole afternoon. The captain was playing a wonderful game, but couldn't quite do everything by himself. The opposing team again took possession of the ball, Parker scoring the third touchdown after Squires had carried the ball within easy striking distance. Squires tried hard to make it 21, but he was brought down a few feet from the line. The scoring ended here, with the English professor on the long end of a score of 20 to 6.

Near the close of the game, Squires uncorked a beauty of a long pass to Hager, netting about forty yards. The ball was soon on the 5-yard line, and Parker broke through, missing a touchdown by a fraction of a second, the whistle blowing while he was in mid-air.

Both teams showed marked improvement over their form of a week ago. Squires was even more powerful than in the first game, often carrying the pigskin for big gains, and pulling down runners in fine fashion. Brewster played neat football for his team, but he didn't receive much support from his team-mates. McGinnis showed wonderful form in his kicks, saving his team from danger each time. Coach Edmunds' squad made a lot of gains through their "tangent" attack, which Miller's team could not stop.

The third and last game of the series will be played next week, and then the varsity eleven will have a couple of weeks of special practice before going against Shanghai on Thanksgiving, when it is hoped that the first game will be staged.

Following is the line-up of yesterday's match:

Edmunds (20)	Pos.	Miller (6)

PROPAGANDA IN U.S. HALTS AID TO EUROPE, HE SAYS

Church Official Declares America Must Solve Economic Problems

(China Press Service)

Washington, Nov. 8.—"The people of Europe can't think straight. They are starving. That is what is wrong with the world. It is sheer unkind-heartedness to criticise a starving man because he is not calmly rational.

"The problems of Europe are fundamentally economic. Before political, physical and even moral conditions can improve they must be solved. They can be worked out only with the help of America. While America remains undecided conditions are rapidly growing worse. Europe will crash unless America acts soon."

This statement was made by Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, General Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, upon returning from an extended tour of Europe, in answer to the questions: "How do the European peoples feel towards us?" and "What can America do?" Answering the second question first, he said:

"America should do one of two things:

"First, offer to sit down with the European nations and formulate a plan for economic reconstruction, or

"Second, make its own proposal.

"If the American people were informed by other than mischievous propaganda they would arise and direct our Government to act with good will towards the nations overseas—and light would break on darkened Europe.

"How do the European peoples feel towards us? is the question asked. Their feeling is one of mingled disappointment that has not reached disillusionment and of hope and faith that still persist.

"They feel that we have left the field of battle without stopping to bury the dead or to help repair the devastation made by our own artillery. Recognition for our private, philanthropic help is not overlooked and still gives impulses to prayers of gratitude. No rancor is manifested, just disappointment, sometimes, however, almost to despair.

"The peoples of Europe are doing the best they can, toiling to rebuild even when they have to seek the straw to make their bricks. One has only to visit Ypres, Dixmude, St. Quentin, Rheims and multitudes of other cities to bear witness to the marvelous recuperative power of our brethren in Europe. One has only to witness the efforts of our Austrian brothers to have his heart stirred to the depths, or deal in German money to have his sympathies aroused for those men and women in the nation who are sincerely seeking to regain for that people a moral standing in the world.

"There are expressions of sectional and racial bitterness, of course, there are vollent discussions between representatives of governments, but these are not the fundamental difficulties. The problem is fundamentally economic.

"It needs no economic expert to see that M. Poincare was right when he said that one might as well try to square a circle as to solve Europe's economic problem without the help of the United States. It is equally clear that the leaders are now seeking to establish a formula that the United States will accept without apparently any clear intimation from the United States as to what kind of a proposal we want. Waiting for Europe to put her house in order is futile, because that is just what Europe needed us to help her do.

"One thing is sure: any proposal from the United States that is anywhere near within bounds of reason, would command assent. It is not the relatively trivial question of debt cancellation, it must be proposal that goes to the very root of the matter. The political leaders know perfectly well that the United States will come into the situation, first because they believe in the sense of moral obligation of our people and second because of ultimate economic necessity on our own part.

"The questions are: Will the United States act before the crash comes, and will America act from a predominantly moral motive rather than seemingly justify Ambassador Harvey and act when forced by its own economic needs?

"If the American people were informed by other than mischievous propaganda, they would rise and direct our government to act with good will—and light would break on darkened Europe. Such propaganda is partly political and partly emanating, I regret to say, from small commercial men who after profiteering in America during the war, are now disappointed in their efforts to exploit Europe through the fluctuation of exchange and the consequent instability of European trade and commerce. Occasionally it comes from tourists who, despite

Noted Shantung Boxer To Head Shanghai Body

MR. WANG CHI-PING

AFTER defeating a number of Russian and French wrestlers in North China, Mr. Wang Chi-ping, leading figure in the troupe of strong men brought down to Shanghai last year by General Ma Liang of Shantung in connection with entertainments to raise famine relief funds for Anhui and Shantung, has decided to settle in Shanghai. He will head the school established by the Society for Military Arts in Nantao. Among other patrons of the school are Lord Li Ying-shih, Mr. E. Y. what they claim to be discrimination against them, sometimes boast that they saved enough in one particular country to meet the expense of their pleasure tour.

"One recalls the new hope that came to the depleted forces of the Allies in 1917 and 1918 when the word was passed along the line, 'America has come.' There would be a new Europe today if the same message ran from heart to heart, 'America has come back again.'"

Nun Here To Celebrate Fifty Years Of Service

Mother Ste. Philomene, Superior At St. Joseph's Institution, Arrived In Shanghai In 1871

Completing fifty years of service as a teacher and administrator at St. Joseph's Institution, the first foreign school in Shanghai, Mother Ste. Philomene will celebrate her golden anniversary as a nun in China next Tuesday. Alumnae and students of the school will give an entertainment in her honor at St. Joseph's Saturday when one of the numbers will be contributed by graduates and pupils who represent three generations, who have been students under the Mother Superior.

Coming to Shanghai in 1871, accompanied by Mother St. Dominique, who is the Superior at Siccawei, Mother Ste. Philomene joined a group of three Sisters who had arrived four months before and had founded, at the request of the few foreign residents in Shanghai, a school for foreign girls. The founding of St. Joseph's followed four years after the Helpers of the Holy Souls had come from France to work in China.

When Mother St. Philomene arrived, the school boasted three pupils while now there are nearly 800, including the girls who are educated in the free school which followed soon after the present superior took charge. Since her arrival, she has seen nearly 10,000 students of 20 different nationalities under her charge, has witnessed the steady growth of the little community of nuns who came from France, has directed extension to Chihli and throughout Kiangsu, and has risen to be Provincial of her order in China.

In 1893 the Institution of the Holy Family was established at North Honan Road, while other expansion directed by the Mother Superior who has been five decades in Shanghai includes several Chinese schools: the Providence School, which has attracted the attention of the Shanghai Rotary Club; several dispensaries, and various societies for the students and graduates of the schools under her charge.

Girls from practically every foreign family in Shanghai have studied under Mother Ste. Philomene or have attended the school since she became Superior of the Institution and the direction of studies was assigned first to Mother St. Josephine, who died a few years ago, and later to Mother Ste. Casilda, who is the present head of the school. Mother Ste. Casilda is an American from Baltimore, as was Mother Ste. Josephine, who was from Los Angeles.

Mother St. Austin, an English nun, is in charge of the Providence School, which provides board, lodging and an education for 115 poor children, a work started by Mother St. Philomene.

Mother St. Philomene has seen the evolution of Shanghai from a muddy flat minus a bund to a modern industrial and residential city and recalls with much amusement the trips by water to Siccawei forty years ago.

IS YOUR ABY GAINING IN WEIGHT?

One of the surest signs that a baby is making good progress is steady increase in weight. After the first week there should be regular and rapid growth if the baby is being properly nourished.

The most common cause of failure to gain weight is malnutrition, the food is either deficient in quality or quantity, or the digestive organs are not doing their work properly. When the stomach or bowels are at fault all that is necessary, usually, to set matters right is the administration of Baby's Own Tablets, the pleasant-tasting Canadian remedy for little ones of all ages. No fear need be entertained as to the wisdom of giving these Tablets, because they are guaranteed, under a Government Analyst's certificate, to contain not a single particle of opiate, narcotic, or other injurious drug, and to be equally helpful and harmless to the youngest infant as to the child of 8 years old or more.

Baby's Own Tablets are just the right remedy for infantile constipation, colic, indigestion, diarrhoea, simple fever, teething troubles and worms. They bring natural, restful health-promoting sleep, restore appetite and make the baby thrive. Of chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Fall Fiction Output Is Coming To Hand

Meredith Nicholson's "Broken Barriers" (Scribners) is as to its locale a story of Indianapolis, and as to its general purport a fictional thesis on the proposition that the world is no worse than it was twenty years ago, but that it is less secret in its trespassing. "What we used to call wicked we call naughty now," says one of the book principals, "and pretend it doesn't matter." The barriers of the title are those of the old conventions.

Grace Durland is Mr. Nicholson's heroine. She has to leave college because of family misfortunes. Untrained, but finely determined, she takes a saleswoman's place in a big department store and finds herself straightway receiving liberal lessons in life. She is a lovely girl and bright. Under the spur of her own courage and the guidance of Irene Kirby, a young woman of tact and experience, she enters upon a course of free living which necessitates a gentle system of fibbing in the home to which the conventions still cling, and in which a super-pious and meddlesome sister serves as the quite unconscious and thoroughly conscientious spur to Grace's contrary spirit.

Surreptitious suppers for four, in which Grace and Irene are the partners of two misunderstood husbands, furnish the beginnings of our heroine's adventures. Stern critics of the morals of other people will say here, and promptly too, that young Miss Durland deserves whatever happens to her as a consequence of such folly. What happens is that she becomes the confessed love of Ward Trenton, whose wife is one of the newest of new women, and even at risk of violating our author's confidence we are going to say right here that this proves in the end of the book to have been a thing of undoubted good fortune to both the man and the maid. Enter then, again the moral critic. Why spoil the pointing and the bearing of what might have been a highly approved and becoming book by permitting the assumption, even in fiction, that happiness could follow a sinful indulgence? Why pretend that a responsible male man who would consent to be party to unlawful feasts at The Shack could by any possibility be a gentleman?

We are going to offer no brief for Mr. Nicholson or his notions. It may be that after getting his book well started he lost the courage of what the moralists would call a logical conclusion. On the other hand, it may be that all he wanted anyway was to tell a good story while letting in a hint that Grace is an incredibly lucky girl to escape burning in a fire of her own daring. Our criticism will be not ethical but purely professional. Our feeling is that in "Broken Barriers" the pursuit of the happy ending is a trifle obvious, and that the desire is something too strongly in evidence to spread thickly the sweet and heart-filling sentiment that there is good in everybody, somewhere, if one can only find it. Irene Kirby has a soul. Tommy Kemp conceals unsuspected character behind his cups. Ward Trenton is every inch a man. And any young person can read "Broken Barriers" with thrills and perfect safety.

"PEREGRINE'S PROGRESS"

Not quite twelve years lie between "The Broad Highway," the book of Jeffery Farnol's earliest fame, and "Peregrine's Progress" (Little-Brown), the romance to which this author invites the attention of today's readers. The new work is less easy to get into than the other, a fact for which passage of time does not wholly account. When once the story is well under way, however, the tale of Peregrine develops an interest as sure and compelling as that attaching to its still famous predecessor. It has some of the same characters as "The Broad Highway," including Jarvis, the tinker.

Peregrine of the "Progress," a hero who tells his own story if we believe Mr. Farnol, is nineteen as we meet him first. He has been brought up by a fond and too, too careful but very beautiful aunt. By word of his two stalwart uncles, Jervas and George, his bringing up has been a disaster, in that it has made him a perfectly ladylike young chap. The gentlemen tell this to the lady in plain terms in our opening chapter. Peregrine overhears the verdict of avuncular authority and straightway, to prove that his is not by any means a hopeless case, he runs away seeking a real man's experiences.

It is, then, of the runaway youth that the book before us tells—of his sad adventures with roisterers, a highwayman, a greedy landlord, rampageous gypsies and villains of various cloth. He is no fighter, this slender and girlish lad, as he sets out on his own in a rough world. He is fortunate, nevertheless, in the stength of the friends he makes, and trebly fortunate in his finding of Diana, a heroine who is as strong as she is fair and true. We see him safely through many perils and not a few triumphs. We leave him just as the road appears to lie openly and finally happy before him. We are, on the whole, distinctly pleased to have met him. He is the living proof, so far as a book can make him live, that Mr. Farnol's romantic fancy still throbs and thrives.

"THE UNLIT LAMP"

From the moment that Claudine Mason makes up her mind to marry Gilbert Vincelle, she is a heroine doomed. This in "The Unlit Lamp" (Dutton), the latest book by Elizabeth Sanxay Holding, author a few years ago of that startling new sort of story, "Invincible Minnie." We have to confess that we can find in the book before us no earthly reason why Claudine should have made up her mind to marry Gilbert. Young Vincelle appears to us as the perfect image of the impossible bridegroom for any girl with a soul-hunger for romance. And unless Mrs. Holding has misrepresented little Miss Mason, she is a very romantic person, indeed.

However, the nuptial mischief is done early in our pages, and then, too late, Claudine discovers that she has married, beside Gilbert, a gloomy old Brooklyn house and a grim and relentless old Brooklyn mother. She has one period of wild girlish revolt. Then, counselled in the name of all the conventions, she accepts the grimness and the gloom. So "The Unlit Lamp" proceeds with one bright lamp of youth permanently blown out.

It is an extinguished Claudine who moves through the rest of our story, a pitiful, ineffective figure wearing her strangely preserved beauty as a sort of mask to remind beholders of what she must have been before her light went out. Indifference is her weapon against the world and her own memories. Only once is she stirred to positive, militant action, and that is when, passionately and ineffectually, she tries to stem in the daughter who is her one center of love a tide of threatening emotionalism.

We may be wrong, but there are things about "The Unlit Lamp" which lead us to suspect that it was written really long before "Invincible Minnie." There is a lack in its pages of the firmness of touch that was a noticeable factor in the making of the book of Minnie. There are passages to suggest an author's uncertainty of mind, or of purpose. The workmanship, to be plain, is that in appearance of a beginner in story-writing. The story has its titular point, moreover, based upon an inconsistency of conception. Toward its close Claudine reads from a line of Browning into her own mind a conviction that she has never tried sincerely to help anybody; that the lamp of her spirit has never been lit. What showing of light should be expected, we wonder, of one whose inner illumination has been so tragically shut off in the midst of her tenderest years?

"ONE THING IS CERTAIN"

To save her from being forced into a marriage more unhappy, if possible, than that to which her mother has been driven, the leading man in "One Thing Is Certain" (Doran), Sophie Kerr's new tragedy of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, goes through a form of marriage with the young girl he knows to be his own daughter. In this plain statement the idea is repugnant. But the man is bedridden and near to his death. To his desperate mind the way he takes seems the only way of rescue, and he believes his secred to be shared by no one who can use it to the girl's humiliation. We abuse Miss Kerr's confidence and have this much to say about the incident because it furnishes a point upon which discussion may center as to our author's good taste. It has to be remembered that the people of our story are, for the most part, weak in the matter of taking thought. They are strong chiefly in their passions.

We have called "One Thing Is Certain" a tragedy because it is principally the tale of the wrecking of the young life of Louellen West, a maid of rare loveliness. This Louellen is in effect, though secretly, promised to Mart Bladen, a youth compounded strangely of wildness and strength and a great human tenderness. He has vowed to give over his sprees and his rough companionships. Yet on a night when his promise still is fresh he yields once again to tempters and joins a gang of raiders of the Harmony Campmeeting. In her stricken pride, Louellen throws her young lover over. In a moment of weakness she listens, as her stern father has wished, to the suit of John Henry Hyde, a beast self-clad in useful robes of sanctity. Her repentance lasts through the long years in which Mart Bladen proves his grit by being driven neither to the dogs nor awy from his home acres.

Miss Kerr has told a story from which lightness flies with the killing of Louellen West's youth and Mart Bladen's hope. In its pages, nevertheless, are both strength and deep interest. Readers will be mistaken who permit the thought of a prevailing somberness to keep them from this tale.

"CARNAC'S FOLLY"

There is little in "Carnac's Folly" (Lippincott) to remind us of the Gilbert Parker we knew in the pages of "The Seats of the Mighty," "The Right of Way" and "The Weavers." The writing in this new book is slipshod and jerky. The rhythm of good prose romance is absent. We feel while we read that Sir Gilbert is reminding himself that the thing has got to be done, and how he hates it.

The plot of the story is frankly melodramatic. Carnac Grier is presented to us as the son of a rich Canadian lumberman, but his inclination is toward art rather than the harvesting of big trees. Hence his disagreement with old John Grier. His particular folly consists in allowing himself to be taken in by a girl adventuress in the States and made the victim of a marriage ceremony he thinks is a joke. This separates him for a long time from the girl he loves. When things are finally made straight for his love there is revealed the mystery of his birth, in which is the explanation of the entire lack of sympathy between him and the lumberman.

What with tales of logging and the crews, and with a diversion into the field of Canadian politics, there is enough incident in "Carnac's Folly" to have furnished forth a stirring tale. The book needs only that vivid author's touch which Sir Gilbert has failed to impart.

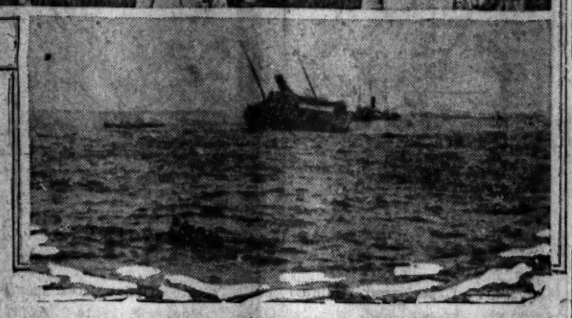
Hammonia Survivors (below) Hammonia Sinking



ABOUT fifty lives were lost when the German liner Hammonia, of the Hamburg Amerika line, sank in a gale on the Atlantic, eighty miles off the coast of Portugal. The British ships Kinfauns Castle, Euclid and Soldier Prince took part in the rescue. The photograph shows strikingly the sinking of the vessel, with the rescue ships standing by, together with some of those rescued by the Kinfauns Castle and taken to Southampton.

HEAVY BOMBERS

Paris, Sept. 9.—France is displaying the greatest activity in airplane construction, notwithstanding the little publicity given to results thus far. Apart from building fast machines for the army, attention is being devoted to the construction of great heavy bombers, which are designed for commercial purposes in peace time.

Following recent tests carried out successfully with a seven to twenty passenger machine, an account is at hand of a practical demonstration of a ten ton all metallic bomber. This craft, of the biplane type, is driven by four 400 horse-power motors, and attained a speed of 170 kilometers an hour with full load. It can remain in the air for ten hours.

Action may not always bring happiness; but there is no happiness without action.

6 Basketball Teams In Chinese League

The "East China" Team headed by Mr. T. T. Zee as Captain has some good material besides C. H. Tyau and Jacob Yang, both members of E. C. I. A. A. Championship Team of 1921 and D. M. Woo, the "Sure Shooter" and J. Woon, the crack guard.

The "St. John's" Team will have their championship team of 1922 as representative on the league and no doubt they will make a good showing.

"Shanghai college," the second team in the E. C. I. A. A. Basket Ball Championship Team Series will participate in the league and has every possibility of winning the title.

"Fuh Tan University" presents a well balanced team as they have two famous Y. M. C. A. basketballers in D. T. Lee and S. M. Chao. Both of them are good shooters so they will have a quite good offensive team.

"Chinese Public School Alumni" Team is just as good as all the previous ones for they have obtained the former Y Team star, D. Y. Lee and the Tientsin player, M. T. Chang. S. Y. Loh is the crack guard.

Although Cantonese Baptist Church promised to participate in the league with a team of old Soochow University players they failed to have their representative in the meeting. Nanyang refused to join. The secretary still hopes they will come in. Application will be received up to November 15.

A big shield made of silver will be awarded by Mr. T. T. Chow, the well known sportsman, to the Championship Team. The shield is to be named as the Social Union Shield.

Domain Of Cecil Rhodes To Enter Africa's U. S.

(From a Bulletin of the National Geographic Society)

Entrance of Southern Rhodesia into the Union of South Africa will supply still another parallel between the United States of America and Africa's "United States."

Just as the United States, a generation or so ago, reached out to the west and made its territories, one after another, into states, so the Union of South Africa is reaching northward and is incorporating the frontier regions. Technically, the union has had no definite claim on the British colonies, protectorates and regions more or less under British control that lie to the north; but it has boasted that it is "heir to all South Africa," and in adding Southern Rhodesia, the region made famous by Cecil Rhodes, it seems to be collecting the first installment of its patrimony.

Rhodesia is in many ways in a condition of development comparable to that of some of the western prairie states when they entered our union. Only trunk line railroads have been constructed for the most part; the close network of the well developed country is yet to come. Highways, too, are still few and poor. Both production and markets are largely undeveloped, and the farmers and ranchmen necessarily live the somewhat hard and primitive lives of the frontier. In recent years, however, Victoria, the capital of Southern Rhodesia, Bulawayo, Salisbury and other towns have developed into modern municipalities with all the conveniences of the Western World.

In one way Southern Rhodesia is without parallel in the United States, for nothing approaching ownership of an empire by a commercial corporation has ever come up in our history. In fact, in the extent to which such control has gone, Southern Rhodesia, together with Northern Rhodesia and adjacent territories, stands alone even in British experience, which contains the stirring history of the East India Company's exploits in India.

The known presence of gold in considerable quantities drew the attention of Rhodes and his associates to Southern Rhodesia. The precious metal is scattered all over the country, though only in a limited number of places has its development proved profitable. Some students assert that this is the lost source of gold in the days of Solomon—gold which was brought through the Arabian port of Ophir and so came to be called "gold of Ophir." Very extensive ruins of great buildings solidly constructed of carefully hewn granite blocks exist near Victoria and are said to be the forts and temples and workshops of alien, perhaps Phoenician, gold seekers of the remote past. The ruins extend to a port on the Indian Ocean, in what is now Portuguese East Africa, from which the gold was probably shipped.

Now a mining, ranching and agricultural country, Southern Rhodesia may also have a future as a manufacturing region. On its northern border flows the Zambezi River with its Victoria Falls of great volume, more than twice the height of Niagara, promising abundant power. Not far the falls are extensive coal fields.

The natives of Southern Rhodesia, numbering some eight hundred thousand, are in the anomalous position of having no official political status. They have drifted, or like Topsy, have "just growed," into their present condition. They have never been formally made British subjects though British control has extended over the country. They might almost be considered subjects of the British South Africa Company. The company has all along laid claim to ownership of the lands on which the natives live except the areas recently set apart as reservations. The white population of the country numbers about thirty thousand.

Southern Rhodesia is roughly circular, with a diameter of about 450 miles. Its entrance will add to the union an area approximately equal to that of California, second largest state in the United States. The center of Southern Rhodesia is about the same distance south of the equator as the City of Mexico is north of that line.

CIVILIAN FLYING

New York, Oct. 9.—According to reports compiled by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, approximately 500 persons are being taught to fly at the score or more of flying schools located in various parts of the United States. Among the leaders in civilian flying instruction are New York, Chicago, Dayton, O.; San Francisco and points in Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

Most significant returns are found in Dayton, O., "the birthplace of the airplane," where at the field of the Dayton Wright Company 4,000 inquiries have been received this summer from civilians who are desirous of learning the requirements and cost of instruction it flight.

Canton Students Object To Loans

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Nov. 2.—A committee of Provincial Assemblymen and representative citizens is examining the note circulation accounts of the Provincial Bank of Kwangtung to prevent further issue of notes. At present, the notes are only accepted on the market at 53 percent of the face value.

The students of Canton have issued the following manifesto:

"We," the students of Kwangtung, China, do protest against further financial aid from foreign individuals, syndicates, or governments to the numerous political and military factions in China, as this outside supply of money and ammunitions has been the causes and means for the present intercine and fratricidal wars to continue in this country.

"We believe that the proposed $4,000,000 Kwangtung Government bonds to be issued at London through British bankers without approval of the National Assembly of the Republic and against the expressed wish of the Cantonese people, will be diverted to other purposes than the rehabilitation of the present currency and the improvement of Canton public utilities.

"We, therefore, request not only the British Government to withhold its support from all British bankers dealing in this undertaking but also all friendly Powers to China to prevent their subjects from rendering aid of any kind which will delay the reunification of China."

How To Pay Feng, New Peking Worry

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Nov. 6.—General Chang Fu-lai, the successor to General Feng Yu-hsiang in the post of Tuchun of Honan, is reported to have arrived at Kaifeng on the 4th instant, when he was welcomed by several of latter's staff. General Feng left for Paoting on the third with a small body guard. According to the report, his arrival at Paoting was very informal and he went directly to Tsao Kun's residence for a talk.

The first regiment of the General Feng's Christian troops should have reached Changhsintien last evening where they will be held for a short time as the barracks at Peiyuan are not ready to accommodate the some twenty odd thousand that will be moved north.

The question of meeting the monthly expenses of this army is receiving serious consideration in the Capital. Both Generals Wu and Tsao Kun are anxious to put the matter directly up to the Peking Government and not have it considered as a part of their military budget. The necessary sum is now estimated to be $360,000 a month.

If everything goes well, General Feng should be in Peking on the 7th according to information given out at Paoting.

LONDON-PARIS RATE
(French Wireless through Reuter)
Paris, Nov. 8.—The Paris-London cross-rate was quoted today at: £1=71.815 Francs.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

Spot and forward bar silver were each down 5-16d in London yesterday. The New York price declined to 66¼ cents and the London-New York cross rate improved to 446⅝.

The only changes in our official quotations here today were a rise in the Gold Dollar rate to 72½ and in the Franc rate to 1155.

Our market was easy at the opening and although at no time did it show any evidence of strength it became somewhat steadier during the day. In the early part of the morning there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3s. 2⅞d. for any delivery and of Gold Dollars at 72¼ for November delivery, 72⅝ for December and 72½ for forward. A small business was done at these rates but as speculators were not as a whole good buyers today, rates steadier up until as high as 3s. 3⅛d. was done for January Sterling. There were, however good buyers at this rate and at the close there were no sellers at better than 3s. 3⅛d. for December-January with buyers for December and possibly January at 3s. 3⅛d.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at the close at 72⅝ November, 72¾ December and 73 for forward delivery, with buyers at about ⅛ point higher.

There were sellers of Yen at 66½ and buyers at 66⅝. In spite of the substantial rise in the Franc quotation there were better buyers of this currency today than there has been for some time past.

A fair business in Franc T.T. was done at 1165 for both near and forward delivery. Banks were quoting 3s. 3¾d. for Sterling bills, 74 for Gold Dollar bills and 1195 for Franc bills.

India and China both sold silver in London yesterday and speculators bought, the market being easy. New York quote their market as easy.

Exchange Market

In their weekly report on the exchange market, Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows:

Exchange:—The price of silver in London has declined ⅛d. for ready and ¼d. forward during the week, today's quotations being 33⅞ and 33 7-16 respectively. Locally the market continues very quiet, the official T.T. rate on London has dropped to 3s. 3d., and the general tone is conspicuously easier there being no sellers at the close above current quotations. Exports still remain very dull, and speculators seem inclined to buy.

Our stocks of silver are reported as follows:

Sycee and Bar Silver Tls. 40,225,000, an increase of Tls. 116,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $37,040,000, a decrease of $710,000.

Estimated value Tls. 66,893,000 as against Tls. 39,828,000 held at this time last year.

The American Elections

THE results of the elections in the United States on Tuesday indicate that the American public is heartily dissatified with the legislation enacted—and not enacted by the Harding Administration and the Republican Congress. No other excuse will serve to account for the Democratic landslide—an upheaval which has lifted the followers of the Donkey from the oblivion of two years ago to a possible majority in the House and a huge gain in the Senate and in the governorships of the individual states.

The defeat of Senator McCumber of North Dakota, the father of the new tariff, in the primaries, presaged the catastrophe to Republican hopes on Tuesday, and despite the appeal President Harding sent out for the electorate to return a Republican majority in the House and Senate it appears that the voters have taken the bit in their teeth and inaugurated a thorough housecleaning, showing favoritism to neither Republicans nor Democrats—simply cleaning out those members of Congress to whom they attach the blame for the legislation now on the nation's scrolls.

The results are paradoxical. Congressman Volstead of Minnesota, the father of the bill that made the United States the Sahara of the world, was defeated for re-election, but by an opponent who stood on an even drier platform. While Minnesota was performing that strange feat the voters in Illinois and Ohio were returning majorities in favor of light wines and beer.

At the same time that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts was being carried to victory by probably the smallest majority he has received during his many years in the political arena, Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, the stormy petrol of the Republican party, was being returned by a huge majority. And Senator Reed of Missouri, a rambunctious Democrat, and Senator Townsend of Michigan, a perfectly harmless Republican, were also re-elected while Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, one of the ablest of the Domocratic leaders in the Senate, went down to defeat alongside of Senator Pomerene of Ohio, one of the Bourbon warhorses.

Senator Calder of New York also went down to a somewhat unexpected defeat, Dr. Royal S. Copeland apparently being swept into the Senate on the crest of the victorious wave that made former Governor Al Smith again the occupant of the "small White House" at Albany. Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey very probably was defeated because of Governor Edwards' well-known wet views, as well as because of the New Jersey Senator's unimpeachable administration support.

The defeat of the woman candidates was to be expected. Women as Senators and Representatives are still an experiment and Miss Robertson of Oklahoma, the only woman member of the House, has not been able to overcome the suggestion of being a freak sufficiently to win in a normal Democratic state.

The elections on the whole tend to equalise the power between the two political parties as well as to serve as a guide in the future policies of both parties. The Republicans now will unquestionably sit back and take stock of what they have done with the result that Republican policies will take a different trend. It is to be expected that the Democrats—feeling as though they had the Republican eleven on the five yard line with five yards to go—will continue the bitter attack they have waged against the Republican administration with the hope of getting a touchdown in the next presidential election. The crop of Democratic possibilities probably will increase remarkably after the manifestations of the people's views as shown in Tuesday's elections.

Centrifugal Race Power

BY THE SPECTATOR

The virility of a race is measured by its centrifugal power. That is, by its power of colonising.

The English speaking people owe their strength and importance to their pioneer blood.

It is a question whether this forthdriving instinct is still strong within us or is dying out. What we call civilisation is not favorable to it.

Future ages will smile to think that in the third decade of the twentieth century there should be such enormous, cluttered hives of humanity as we find in London, New York and Chicago, while both Great Britain and America possess vast spaces of tens of thousands of acres of virgin land crying out to be filled, and much more suitable to human habitation than the present crowded centers.

If you examine such maps as those given by Professor Smith in his "World's Food Resources," showing the distribution of population over the surface of the earth, you will be struck by the fact that it is coagulated into a few spots, while great areas are sparsely inhabited.

The reason for this is that most of the desires generated by modern civilisation urge people to the cities. In the city is amusement, art, music, culture and wealth.

The only force that can counteract these and scatter the people is the force of adventure and the love of independence and wide spaces.

And this love of adventure and experiment only comes from an abundance of the tides of life and of youth. It characterises a young, fresh and vigorous people.

Cities may be indications of progress and of culture, but they are also indications of softness and decay.

The advance of invention is doing much to make country life less lonely and limited. The telegraph, the telephone, the newspaper and cheap books and magazines, the railroad, the airplane the automobile—all these things help. But it is doubtful whether they are sufficient to supply the necessary energy that shall push pioneers out to conquer the forests and the deserts and to make gardens in the waste places.

Certain it is that the world is yet but imperfectly organised. We are just beginning to realise the opportunities of the planet upon which we live, and the enormous resources which are still untouched.

And what is more important we do not realise that the most healthful, the most normal and the happiest life is not that of the lovers of self-indulgence who crawl back to the comfort of cities, but that of the forerunners, the empire builders and the pioneers.

These are the overcomers, and to them that overcome is always given the crown of life and the morning star.

Japan, China And Kwantung

A Japanese Authority's Views Of The Question Of The Leasehold Term—Examination Of China's Contentions

BY DR. MASAO KAMBE

The agitation which has been launched in China for the return by Japan of the leased territory of Kwantung at the expiration of the term of the first, or Russian, lease, in March next year, has brought this question into the field of active political discussion. The Japanese press has been commenting frequently on the question recently, most of the writers taking an uncompromising line and denying that there is any basis for the Chinese claims. The article which is translated below is of a more moderate and scholarly character. It was written for the Tokyo Asahi by Dr. Masao Kambe, professor in the College of Economics of the Imperial University of Kyoto, one of the most eminent of Japanese publicists. The line of his argument is that Japan's right to insist on the longer term of the lease, 99 years, provided in the Sino-Japanese treaty of 1915, is well founded, but that Japan might gain in the long run by returning the leased territory to China, providing that the Chinese Government can give assurances that order and security will be maintained in Kwantung and South Manchuria as well as it is now under the Japanese regime. A summarized translation of Dr. Kambe's article follows:

There is no reason to be surprised by the growing agitation in China for return of Kwangtung. The most prominent characteristic of the Chinese people is that when given an inch they try to take an ell. In view of the success which has crowned their efforts to obtain a revision of the Shantung settlement, it was only to be expected that they would next try to obtain restoration of Kwantung.

The easiest way for Chinese aspirants for political honors to achieve success is to chime in with the popular cry for recovery of all China's rights. Moreover, it is the usual thing for Chinese political groups not inside the Government to press the Government for the execution of policies which are obviously impossible. The Shantung question was pending for four years and, as is well known, as much political capital as possible was made out of the issue by Chinese politicians on both sides. Now that the Shantung question has been virtually settled, the Chinese politicians are naturally searching for a new issue which they can exploit for their own purposes, and in the contention that the old lease of Kwantung territory expires next year they have found it.

WHAT THE CHINESE CLAIM

The Chinese Government and politicians claim that the Sino-Japanese Treaty based on the Twenty-One Demands of 1915 is invalid because it was made under duress. They also point out that it has never been approved by the Chinese Parliament. They say that the only logical basis for the Japanese right to retain Kwantung is the rights Japan inherited from Russia at the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war, these rights having been granted Russia in the treaty of 1898 between Russia and China. Under that treaty the lease for the Kwantung territory was to expire in March, 1923. Therefore, the Chinese agitators claim, China is entitled to the restoration of the territory next year.

It cannot be denied that there is some force to this argument, if it is granted that the 1915 treaty is invalid, as the Chinese claim. The whole question hangs on the validity of that treaty. At the time that Japan opened negotiations with China for the framing of this treaty, Great Britain gave tacit consent to the Japanese claims. The American Government, it is true, addressed questions on five counts to Viscount Kato, Foreign Minister of Japan; but the reply given by the Japanese Government dispelled American misgivings, although the Washington Government made it clear that it would not recognise the treaty if it interfered with the rights held by America or American citizens in China. Thus it is seen that neither Great Britain nor the United States denied the treaty when it was concluded. The Paris and Washington Conferences tended to confirm this treaty by implication. From the legal point of view, therefore, China's demand for revision of the treaty affecting Japanese rights in Manchuria and Mongolia has no sound basis. Its revision is impossible without the willing consent of Japan.

THE LOGIC OF THE PROBLEM

There is, however, another contention which can be based on pure logic. There would be no difficulty about the solving of international problems if logic always prevailed, but unfortunately in the discussion of international issues Sino-Japanese question in particular, there are many other factors besides logic. The Shantung controversy is an example. From the point of sheer logic all the disputes that arose over that question were without excuse since the terms of the Shantung agreements were written in black and white. When sentiment was introduced into the discussions, however, the whole problem assumed serious proportions which could not be explained by reason, until the discontented Chinese had recourse to their usual method of anti-Japanese boycotts. To make matters worse, foreign instigation aggravated the anti-Japanese agitation. It is now reported that Dr. Paul S. Reinch, former American Minister to China, and Mr. B. Lenox Simpson, a well known English publicist, are giving valuable support to the Chinese movement for the recovery of Kwantung Province. If so, it is impossible to be optimistic about the future of the movement.

After the Russo-Japanese war Japan obtained from Russia the railway in Manchuria, the lease hold of Port Arthur and Dairen and the right of working mines. This transfer of rights was recognised, later by the Chinese Government in the Peking treaty. Marquis Komura, then the Japanese Foreign Minister, who directed these negotiations on behalf of the Japanese Government, was very hopeful of the future of Manchuria, and stressed his belief that Manchuria and Mongolia were the best sphere for the future development of the Japanese. The migration of Japanese into those territories, however, was not as successful as originally desired, for reasons of climate, lack of capital and other considerations. However, the economic development secured through the South Manchuria Railway Company was marked. In 1907, when Japan first obtained possession of Manchuria, the trade through the port of Dairen was not worth Y50,000, which the shipping which visited that port did not exceed 400,000 tons. At present the trade through the port of Dairen is estimated at over Y600,000,000 a year and the tonnage of the shipping visiting that port at over 4,000,000 tons. If to this is added the trade of Yinkow, Antung and other points, the total trade of South Manchuria will reach Y850,000,000.

PROFITS FOR ALL NATIONS

This marked development is, no doubt, partly due to favorable surrounding circumstances, but it cannot be denied that it is also largely due to the fact that Japan has put forth sincere efforts to develop the territory. It is hardly necessary to point out that Japan has profited greatly by this immense development in Manchuria. How much she has gained will be seen from the fact that about 70 percent of the trade of that region is with Japan. Japan is not the only gainer, however; other powers, as well as China, have derived much profit.

At the time of Japan's succession to Russian rights in Manchuria after the Russo-Japanese war, Japan hoped that the territory would provide a good outlet for her surplus population, but attempts in this direction have been attended with only partial success, as will be seen from the fact that the number of Japanese residents now in Manchuria is not more than 78,700. Most of these are merchants, and it is no exaggeration to say that the emigration of Japanese farmers into that region has been a failure.

The Koreans, however, have achieved remarkable development in Manchuria. It is estimated that in Fengtien and Kirin Provinces alone there are now 676,000 Koreans. As most of these settlers are farmers, it may be said that Japan is deriving considerable agricultural profit from this source.

I am confident that the maintenance of perfect peace and order in Manchuria, since Japan's acquisition of the leasehold there made possible by earnest co-operation between the Japanese and Chinese authorities, has contributed greatly to the progress of productive industry. China has been in a state of constant commotion during the last dozen years, and trade in China has often been in danger of destruction. Manchuria, however, has been secure from these domestic disturbances, due to the fact that Japan holds the leasehold and exercises special rights in the railway zone. It is superfluous to add that the tranquility that has prevailed in Manchuria has greatly encouraged Japanese development in that region. Should Kwantung province be returned to China it will surely give a sense of insecurity to the Japanese engaged in industry there and may result in the abandonment of many of their undertakings.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

We admit that at the time Russia was pursuing an aggressive policy toward Manchuria there were some Japanese who looked upon that territory as a desirable barrier against Russian attack upon Japan. Nor can we deny that when the powers closed their doors upon Japan some Japanese regarded Manchuria as important from the point of view of Japan's national defense still find much support among publicists who are obsessed by fear of an invasion by Soviet Russia. Nor is Japan free from publicists who urge the need of securing a predominant position in Manchuria, politically and economically. The general trend of world affairs, however, forbids any power to follow an aggressive foreign policy, and after the Washington conference, with its resolutions which were adopted regarding China, the pacific nature of Japan's policy has become clear. So long as the free development of Manchuria is insured and the goal of the co-existence and co-prosperity of Japan and China is attained, Japan should not insist on technical points. If China can control Manchuria perfectly, if she can maintain peace and order in that territory, Japan should not insist on the extension of the period of the lease for Manchuria.

Of all the powers, America is paying the closest attention to Manchuria. Some years ago she planned the construction of the Chinchow-Algun railway, which was to parallel the South Manchuria Railway. She also advocated the neutralisation of the Manchurian railways. American enterprises for the development of Manchuria were undertaken in other directions too, but no notable success attended them. Some Japanese hold the view that America recognised Japan's predominance in Manchuria in the Ishii-Lansing Agreement, but this conclusion is too hasty, as there is reason to

The Origin Of Human Varieties

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

The ever-fascinating and still unsolved problem of the origin of varieties of the human species is interestingly stated again in a letter from Louis P. Siebens, of Roxbury, Mass. More may hang upon the decision of this question than they who read as they run imagine. Among other things, its solution would by revealing hereditary tendencies and their causes, teach us a great deal about the essentials for the improvement of mankind.

Mr. Siebens asks: "May not the cradle of mankind have been in the northern regions, because aeons ago, when the sun had more heat than now for the earth, the southern parts were too hot for habitation? Also, is it not probable that the color of man's skin was originally black, and was gradually changed into light or white by the effects of climate?"

In explanation he goes on to say: "My point of view is that the northern regions, although a sealed book for the first ancient historians, were the natural cradle of humanity and that the pigmentation was altered by climatic variations, for nature permitting always the strongest to survive, at the same time protects all creatures, and sometimes by color changes.

"I myself have witnessed how Siberian white hares, 500 in number, were taken about twenty years ago to the Baltic provinces. In about three years they lost their white hairs in the new forests and became like the native hares. Although man has enormous powers of resistance, nevertheless, he, as well as the polar bear, has been obliged to change color.

"His skull has become thinner since nature did not need to protect his top story from sunstroke, while the negro retains his thicker head-bones as a helmet against the sun's shafts. While man in general has lost his curls, the negro has them in abundance. Unless a physical intermixture alters features, climatic changes effect human beings very slowly. Still, from the variations that nature brings to all living creatures, in water and on earth, man cannot escape, in spite of all his resistance. What do you think about it?"

I think it quite as probable that the first members of the human race were of a light or medium complexion, rather than black, and on the supposition that the cradle of mankind was in the far North they may have to be regarded as the whitest people of today. In that case, the dense pigmentation of the skin which serves to protect the African from sunstroke would have to be regarded as having been slowly developed among those early representatives of the species who penetrated into the tropics and passed south of the equator.

So, too, the thinner skull would be an original characteristic instead of an acquired one, the thick skulls and curly hair being developed along with the black skin as a final result of continual exposure to equatorial sunshine.

The history of the white Siberian hares becoming gray after being transported to the Baltic climate seems to accord with this supposition of a southward migration affecting the color, etc., of mankind. The rapidity in the change in them compared with the exceeding slowness of any similar change in man does not destroy the analogy, although it is to be remembered that among lower animals color, as a "protective device," is governed by other conditions of the environment than the abundance or the rarity of the supply of sunshine.

It seems to depend upon the number and ferocity of enemies, only the least conspicuous members of a species being able to escape destruction, and inconspicuousness depends mainly upon color, those hues being the "safest" that blend most completely with the prevailing color tone of the landscapes—as was so dramatically illustrated by the vast system of "camouflage" with which man outdid nature in the great war of the nations. Such superficial devices may be more easily cast off, or changed, than the deeper-lying characteristics that distinguish the Europeans from the natives of equatorial regions.

But, I am not convinced that the negroes and the whites were ever one face, part of whose members changed color in consequence of migration to another climate. As the evidence now stands, I am quite as ready to believe that the negro originated within the tropics and the white man outside of them. I see no necessity for assuming a single ancestral line for mankind, or a single birthplace.

believe that there exists a diversity of interpretation of the terms of the agreement. It is nevertheless conceivable that should Japan's policy toward Manchuria be framed in consonance with the principles of the open door and equal opportunity and with the industrial development of the territory mainly in view, America will not offer any formal opposition. It is tolerable certain that Britain will not endorse the Chinese claims for the recovery of Kwantung, if the attitude assumed by the British delegates at the Washington conference is a criterion by which the general policy of Britain can be judged. There are indications that Japan took a leaf out of the British book on many occasions in framing her policy toward China. China's insistence upon the invalidity of the Sino-Japanese treaty of 1915, if it is agreed to, will undermine the position of Britain in her possession of Hongkong, Kowloon and Shameen. France is not greatly interested in Manchuria, and, moreover, seeing that she has a leased territory in Southern China herself it is not likely that she will support the Chinese contention.

MUST EXPECT BOYCOTTS

If the attitude of the American, British and French Governments will be such as has been described, Japan must be fully prepared for some support being given the Chinese cause by British and American residents in China. It is not impossible that their encouragement of Chinese agitators will aggravate Sino-Japanese troubles. The favorite and traditional tactics of the Chinese Government is to play one power against another with the object of exploiting the situation thereby created for its own purposes. Japan therefore must be fully prepared for the question being turned to account by China who will avail herself of every opportunity that may present itself.

The most powerful weapon the Chinese can employ against Japan is the anti-Japanese boycott. If China's is determined to recover possession of Kwantung Province at any cost she will probably start anti-Japanese boycotts. But if Japan meets such action by advocacy of the righteous cause of co-existence and co-prosperity, the boycotts will only provoke the hostility of Chinese business men and alienate the sympathies of the powers. Thus it seems that the only way for China to recover Kwantung is to see that perfect peace and order are maintained in that territory, and that foreign lives and property are fully protected. If China can accomplish this, there is no reason why Japan should not comply with the Chinese claim, since Japan has no territorial designs. If Japan should reject the Chinese claim after that is accomplished, China will have the sympathy of all the powers.

Despair is the conclusion of fools.

Eight Parents Don't Want This Girl

Anna Warchel

LET Anna Warchel, fourteen, of Chicago, tell her own story: "My mother died when I was a baby. My father married my Stepmother No. 1, but she died. Then he married Stepmother No. 2. Then he died, and she married again. Then she died, and my first stepfather married again, giving me a third stepmother. Then my stepfather died, and my third stepmother married again, giving me Stepfather No. 2. My third stepmother died, and my second stepfather married again, giving me Stepmother No. 4. I can't remember all their names, but none of them loved me except my real mother and father—and now I'm looking for a home."

Bomb Suspect In Canton Still Untried

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Nov. 2.—Dr. M. M. de Colbert, the German, who is still being held in connection with the bomb outrages in Canton on Oct. 10, has not yet been formally tried.

So far the evidence against him seems weak, and he will probably be requested simply to leave the city upon his release. He claims German nationality, but it is understood that he was born in Canada and also has American passports.

None of the suspects held so far has been tried or convicted.

WHEN Grandma knits or sews does she find it necessary frequently to stop to rest her eyes?

In old age the eyes are likely to need frequent testing by a skilled optometrist so that glasses may be regularly adapted to the changes taking place in the eyes.

Ku Klux Klanswomen Beat Up A Woman

Mrs. I. C. Tatum

THIS photograph shows Mrs. I. C. Tatum, who was kidnaped from her home a few miles from Fort Worth, Texas, by a band of unmasked women, who asserted they were members of a secret society, and was whipped on the charge that she had mistreated her fourteen-year-old daughter. Mrs. Tatum denied the charges of the women that she had taught her daughter immorality. It is declared the women are members of an auxiliary of the Ku Klux Klan.

Feng Blames Wu For Bandit Ravages

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peqing, Nov. 6.—Writing on the 3rd instant Reuter's Kaifeng correspondent said that General Feng Yu-hsiang was leaving that evening for Paotingfu and from there would proceed to his quarters at Nanyuan.

It was rumored that one cause of the rupture between Generals Wu Pei-fu and Feng Yu-hsiang was that the latter had not been allowed a free hand in putting down brigandage.

Two more foreigners were in the hands of the bandits in Honan, Mrs. Soderstrom and her daughter of the China Inland Mission. They had been seized at Shenchu a few days earlier.

They made seven foreigners, representing five countries now being held by the outlaws.

General Feng has notified the Government that preparations for the transfer of his troops to Peking have been in progress since Friday last. General Feng's troops have been withdrawn from Kaifengfu and those of General Chang Fu-lai have arrived.

Five trains will be required to bring the Christian General's forces from Honan.

SECRETARY OF KULING SETATE RESIGNS OFFICE

Mountain Summer Resort Council Holds Meeting And Makes Report

The usual Autumn meeting of the Kuling Council was held at Kuling on October 31, there being eight members of the Council present, says the Central China Post.

The Council received with regret the resignation of the Estate Secretary and Accountant, Mr. J. Hammond Reed, and placed on record their appreciation of his unusually acceptable and efficient services to the Estate and the Community.

The usual reports on all departments of the Council's interests and responsibilities were received, and the numerous questions arising out of these were decided. Of most general interest possibly, was the decision to issue a new edition of the "Information to Visitors." This is to be much enlarged in every respect, and by the inclusion of advertisements, will be published in such numbers and under such circumstances as to make it possible to distribute it free to all visiting the Estate.

The assessment is proceeding apace, and in accordance with the Landrenters' Minutes of August 1922, the Council have nominated the following to serve on the Board of equalisations: Messrs. G. A. Clayton; Lewis Jones; J. R. Graham; A. M. T. Woodward; and J. H. Vogel with Mr. L. T. Beddow, the Assessor ex-officio. This Board is to meet on fixed days in July and August to adjudicate points of dispute on assessments.

Possibly the most far-reaching action of the Council was their acceptance of the recommendations of the Auditorium and Library Building Committee to proceed immediately with the erection of the permanent Auditorium. This project has been before the Kuling public ever since the building of the new Church years ago. The Community stand committed to this project as to no other that is at present contemplated, and plans have been drawn and estimates received that, in conjunction with pledges received and the debentures authorised this last summer, these make the building possible. Work is to be started at once, and subscriptions may be sent to the Rev. P. Maslin, Hankow.

It is to be noted that the Temporary Auditorium has not received one cent from any of the subscriptions paid into this Permanent Building Fund, but has been completely paid for out of concert and cinema earnings. It stands today as an asset to the permanent fund as regards it's future earning capacity and selling price when finished with.

The question of the Kuling Estate Hospital was thoroughly discussed, and the proposed plans for the permanent building in West Valley is to be sent to the Peking Union Medical School for their criticisms and suggestions.

The West Valley Water Supply Committee's report was received, and it seems at the present stage absolutely impractical to install any regular water system. Several new springs have been disoovered, and special arrangements are in hand for their development and the conservation of water at those points.

Considerable correspondence and details of administration occupied the time of the Council through a meeting which extended to a day and a half.

Mukden To Retain Old Postal Rates

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Nov. 6.—A despatch from Mukden reports that Chang Tso-lin held a conference to discuss the new increase in postal and telegraphic charges as concerned the Three Eastern Provinces. The outcome of the meeting is said to be the order that since the postal administration is in foreign hands, that increase shall be allowed.

However, the Three Eastern Provinces have their own self-government and the edict of the Ministry of Communications raising the price on telegrams shall not apply therein. Consequently the old telegraph rates will continue to be collected from all stations in Manchuria.

CUBISTS ON WANE

(French Wireless)

Paris, Nov. 8.—The President of France today opened the Autumn Salon art exhibition held at the Grand Palais. The majority of paintings displayed a remarkable tendency toward old schools, religious subjects predominating. The so called "Moderns" and ultra cubists were noticeable by their absence.

ARMY REPORT

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Nov. 8.—The Army Commission has begun the examination of the report of M. Fabry on the bill for the reorganisation of the army.
